7 reasons why you DON'T Psychedelic Coming Out Day

19 April

Also known as Bicycle Day:

April 19, 1943, Hoffmann performed a self-experiment to determine the true effects of LSD, intentionally ingesting 0.25 milligrams (250 micrograms) of the substance. - source wikipedia

Bicycle Day is celebrated in San Francisco - FB event.

National Coming Out Day is organised by Psychedelic Society in the UK - FB event - but I don't and you shouldn't either.

Actions speak louder than words

- Taking whole family to Boom, a psychedelic mecca in Portugal with a much more sensible drug policy
- Crowdfunding scientific research - brain imaging on LSD smashed the target of £25000 reaching 214%
- Meeting with pioneers at psychedelic conferences (Beyond Psychedelics, Breaking Convention)
- Flying to amazon jungle and participate in shamanic ceremonies
- Supporting financially Psychedelic Salon
- Surrounding myself with visionary art and spreading it to the world
- Educating others and sharing knowledge (I'm looking for a mentor too)
- Going to Psychedelic Society meetups (I was to the very first one)

HEMP is a RESOURCE

20 years for trees to mature vs 4 months for hemp

Hemp can yield 3-8 dry tons of fiber per acre, FOUR times what an average forest can yield.

Paper, fertilizers, soil nutrients and animal bedding can be made from leftover waste when processing hemp.

This means all parts of the plant are being used, or put back into the earth.

Hemp seeds contain nutritious, Polyunsaturated Fatty Acids (PUFAs) 80% the highest amount found within the plant kingdom. Highly nutritious of humans and animals.

Why is hemp off the biofuel menu?

With recent reports downplaying the possibility of biofuels as a solution to climate change,
Giulio Sica wonders why there has been no mention of hemp as an alternative crop

Hemp does not need to have land cleared to grow it, grows faster than any of the crops currently used and leaves the ground in a better state when it is harvested.

So why was there not a single mention of this miracle crop, that, in addition to being able to be used as fuel, can also be used as paper, cloth, converted into plastic and is a rich food source containing high levels of protein?

Soybean car

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

The soybean car, more recently referred to as the hemp body car, was a car built with agricultural plastic. Although the formula used to create the plasticized panels has been lost, it is conjectured that the first iteration of the body was made partially from soybeans and hemp.^{[2][A][4]} The body was lighter and therefore more fuel efficient than a normal metal body.^[5] It was made in Dearborn, Michigan, through the work of scientist/botanist George Washington Carver and was introduced to public view on August 13, 1941.^[2] It was made, in part, as a hedge against the rationing of steel during World War II.^{[6][7]} It was designed to run on hemp fuel.^[8]

Licence

Hemp growing licence

You must provide your contact details and:

- field location numbers, names or grid references
- hectarage details
- farm map with a marked growing area
- seed type, THC content and confirmation of whether this is a European Union approved seed

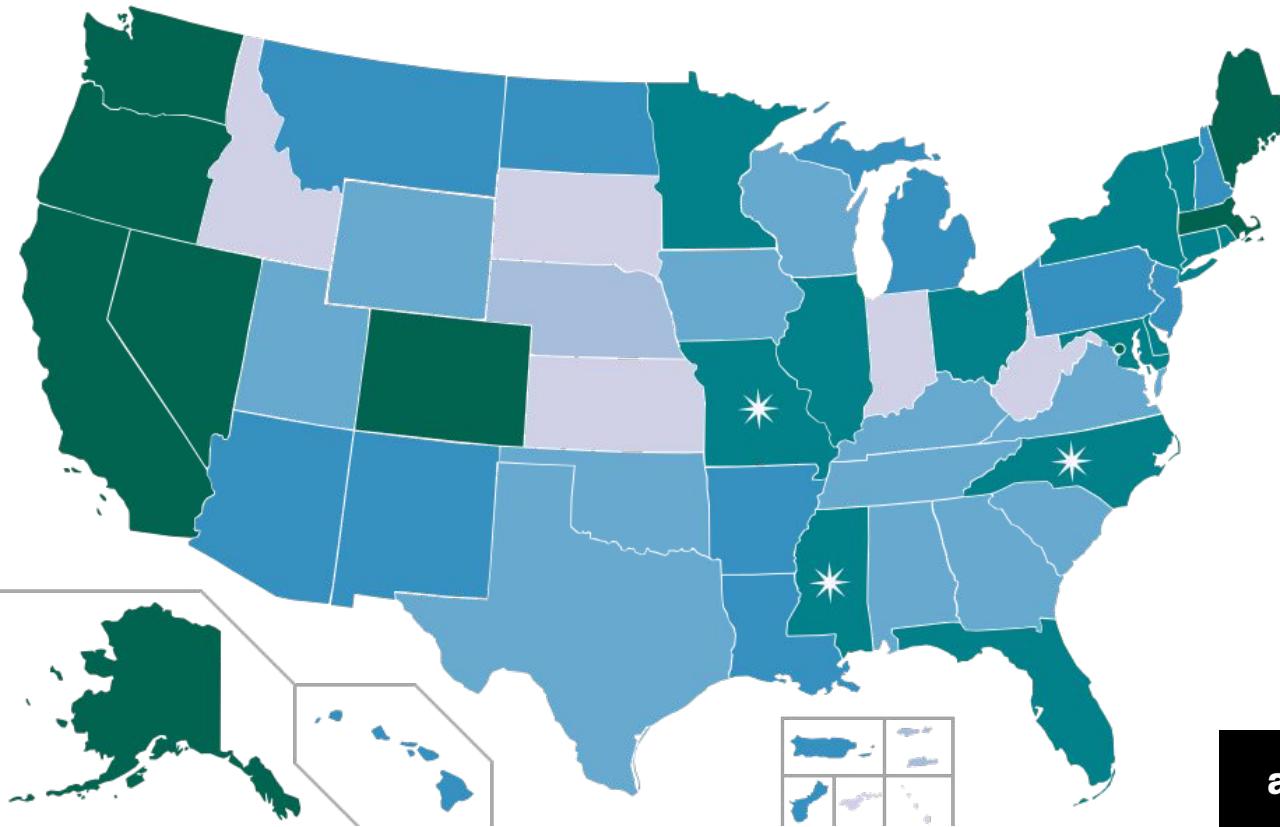

You must pay a fee with your application. New licences usually cost £580, with licence renewals costing £326.

Cannabis is indigenous to Central and South Asia.^[168] There is evidence of inhalation of cannabis smoke from the 3rd millennium BCE, namely charred cannabis seeds found in a ritual brazier at an ancient burial site in present-day Romania.^[169] The earliest written reference to cannabis dates back to 2727 B.C., from the Chinese emperor Shennong.^[170]

Hemp is called ganja (Sanskrit: गञ्जा, IAST: gañjā) in Sanskrit and other modern Indo-Aryan languages.^[175] Some scholars suggest that the ancient drug soma, mentioned in the Vedas, was cannabis, although this theory is disputed.^[176] should be associated directly with hemp drugs, it appears to be reasonably established that the excessive use of these drugs does not cause asthma ; that it may indirectly cause dysentery by weakening the constitution as above indicated ; and that it may cause bronchitis mainly through the action of the inhaled smoke on the bronchial tubes.

In respect to the alleged mental effects of the drugs, the Commission have come to the conclusion that the moderate use of hemp drugs produces no injurious effects on the mind. It may indeed be accepted that in the case of specially marked neurotic diathesis, even the moderate use may produce mental injury. For the slightest mental stimulation or excitement may have that effect in such cases. But putting aside these quite exceptional cases, the moderate use of these drugs produces no mental injury. It is otherwise with the excessive use. Excessive use indicates and intensifies mental instability. It

Retracted article on dopaminergic neurotoxicity of MDMA

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

"Severe dopaminergic neurotoxicity in primates after a common recreational dose regimen of MDMA^[nb 1]

("ecstasy")",^[1] was a paper by Dr. George Ricaurte which was published in the leading journal Science, and later retracted. The reason was that instead of using MDMA, methamphetamine had been used in the test.^[2]

The retraction of the paper led to questions over its publication. It has also been asserted that this questions the peer review process. Many have also argued that the failings in the paper (use of materials other than those specified) could not have been caught by peer review; and that the scientific process did work successfully in the end, in that the article was ultimately retracted.

The paper was published in the 27 September 2002 issue of Science (volume 297, pages 2260-3).^[1] The article had been submitted to Science on 29 May 2002 and was accepted for publication on 14 August 2002. Neither the time required for peer review nor the time between acceptance for publication and actual date of publication were unusual.
